WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., SEPT. 21, 1874.

The insurrection and removal of Governor Kellogg in Louisiana caused some excitement here the past week, and for awhile it looked like old War times around the hotels. The troubles throughout the South have been brewing for some time, and everything to-day seems in a feverish and mixed state. It is especially so in Louisiana where the question of who is Governor has been a cause of agitation since the election about two years ago. Kellogg, on the one hand, has been inaugurated, his administration has been established and has been recognized by the Courts, the President and by Congress. On the other hand, McEnery claims to have been elected, and last winter was in this city during the session of Congress, endeavoring to establish his claim. I saw him often then, and he appeared to be a man of no great strength of character, which is confirmed by his remaining away from the city of New Orleans, leaving the movements of the Insurgents to be regulated by Lieutenant Governor Penn. This whole question was before Congress, and the President in a message stated the condition of affairs, and that he must recognize Kellogg if no action was taken by them. The question is not whether either of these two men are Governor, but can a recognized Government be overturned by a body of armed and desperate men. It seems to be the unanimous opinion that the President had but one course to pursue, and that to suppress the insurrection at all hazards. There is no doubt that great frauds are committed at the elections in the South, but the people have only themselves to blame. The trouble lies in the "born-to-rule" class who keep aloof from the polls, and thus permit another class to take possession. There is such an antipathy to the colored man, as a free man, that they cannot, for their own interests, tolerate any association by themselves or others at the political meetings. At every opportunity, their antipathy shows itself, that the least dispute, which would be trifles in the North, are made pretexts for a row. Until their opposition to the Negro, and the laws of Congress for his benefit, is overcome. I can see no real peace in the South.

It is known how the President issued a proclamation ordering the insurgents in New Orleans to disperse in five days, and how they acquiesced. Now that the McEnery men have shown their revolt was not against the United States, it is time the North should seriously see how to afford relief against a State Government which, evidently, is intolerable to them.

The main blame rests with Congress, as it shirked the task of distinctly defining the situation, even after Senator Carpenter, who visited the State to inform himself of the condition of affairs there, represented in the strongest languagethe injustice, as well as the harmful consequences likely to result if something was not promptly done. Public opinion should now be directed upon members of Congress constantly before next session, in such a way that they will make the work of righting the wrongs of Louisiana the first business of the session.

It would be well, anyway, for the people to know what their members generally do, when at Washington, and what they ever accomplish. If they confined themselves more to the business of the country, we would have less dissatisfaction in the South.

As predicted, Benton, the burglar, was nonest when the Safe Burglary case was called on the 15th. The Grand Jury presented indictments, after Benton's arrest was ordered, and all the parties I mentioned in a former letter were indicted, which included Harrington, "Assistant District Attorney," Whitley and Nettleship, Chief and Assistant of the Secret Service of our Government, and Gustave Zirith of Newark, N. J. The indictments present that these persons, and others unknown, with force, conspired against Columbus Alexander to cause it to be believed by the people that he was a corrupt and infamous man; to charge him with consorting with burglars and thieves, and that he employed them to enter the office of the District Attorney and force open the iron safe and steal and carry away the contents. Then to cause the arrest of Alexander with such stolen property in his possession, and to cause him to be punished therefor, with the intent to cast obloquy on him, and other persons engaged with him in maintaing allegations contained in their memorial to Congress investigating the District Government.

The conspirators are charged with "employing a skillful burglar, and professed thief to examine Alexander's premises, and with instructing them with the part they were to act." That Harrington "got books and so arranged the office that it could be entered and robbed," and then it states how two police officers were got for the pretence of watching the robbery, and that they all followed the burglar pointed out by Harrington (allowing one to escape) to Alexander's house, and if Alexander took the books and papers, both should be arrested. The burglar made several attempts to get in the house, when the officers refused to further obey Harrington, and arrested him. The indictment also reads that the conspirators caused the safe to be so opened, used and treated as to give it the appearance of having been blown open with gunpowder, and that they procured the burglars to make affidavit they were employed by Alexander.

It is shown that the night the burglar started to find Alexander's residence he had forgotten the way, and when followed by Harrington, Chief of Police and others, he turned around several times asking these parties where the place was, and once was prompted by Harrington when the burglar said Mr. Columbus instead of Mr. Alexander.

Mr. Harrington, anticipating the remarks of the Court, said he "understood" he was indicted, and he was glad that "at length these nebulous rumors and innuendoes have been crytallized into the form of an indictment," that he may meet his accusers and their proof." The case will be assigned for trial this week.

The Grand Jury failed to find a bill against Dana, have found a bill of conspiracy against one of the active friends of the bill—some say its author—Mr. Harrington.

Mr. A. L. Gobright, chief of the Associated Press Bureau, in this city, has preferred charges against Rev. Mr. Chenowith, Superintendent and Disbursing Officer of the Post-Office Department, for attempt at bribery. As Judge Cartter says, "it's a bad year for clergymen."

Lieut. Fred. Grant, eldest son of the President, will be married October 20th, to Miss Ida Honore of Chicago. Miss Honore is a sister of Mrs. Potter Palmer, and one of the leading young ladies of Chicago society.

Last week, during the progress of a trial in a county adjoining this city, a fine looking young man, of grave aspect, rose as one of the counsel to address the Court. He attracted attention immediately, and it was evident he was a person of some capacity. After inquiry, he was found to be Jerome Bonaparte, a grand nephew to the great Napoleon, who was recently admitted at the bar, and was now making his maiden speech. The persons present state their belief of the young lawyer's future distinction.

Ste. Marie, who captured John H. Surratt, the accomplice in the assassination of President Lincoln, died last week in Philadelphia. He received only $10,000 of the $25,000 offered by the Government for Surratt, and he instituted a suit for the balance, which is now pending in the Supreme Court.

John Morrissey intends purchasing a house here, to fit it up as a first-class Club House, after the style of his famous place at Saratoga—to be kept open only during the Congressional season.

Daniel J. Flynn, a clerk in the Land Office, attended the Mexican Veteran's excursion, and when returing home was drowned.

Mr. John W. Kelley of the Commissary Dep't, who will be recollected by all old soldiers as the genial officer in charge of "Soldiers Retreat," situated close by the Baltimore Depot, during the War, died here last Friday.

VINCENT.

St. Nicholas for October

Opens with a bright story by Mrs. R. H. Davis, which is followed by a splendidly illustrated article on Egypt by Mrs. Sara Keables Hunt. "Venus' Flower-Basket" is a description of the Glass Sponge, with a picture that is positively wonderful in the delicacy of its execution. Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge has one of her charming little poems called "Coming," and C. P. Cranch contributes some comic verses, illustrated from his own designs, making fun of the Comet. There is also a poem by Helen Hunt. Miss Louisa M. Alcott has a story, and Mrs. Abby Morton Diaz tells something more about those funny little "Jimmyjohns." There is an interestng article on "Ice in India," and Wm. H. Riding has one of his admirable practical articles called "Our Light- houses and Lightships," which is full of interesting pictures drawn by Moran, Perkins, Runge, and other noted artists. The serials, "Fast Friends" by J. T. Trowbridge, and "What Might Have Been Expected" by Frank R. Stockton, are concluded. We notice that the Letter Box, and that quaint fellow, 'Jack-in-the-Pulpit," are unusually brilliant this month.

A tray of diamonds worth $1,000, stolen from Goodwin & Co. of Boston five years ago, has been restored through the medium of the confessional.

Burning of a Cotton Mill.

Another of those fearful calamities, in part attributable to human carelessness, which have formed a sad chapter in the domestic history of the year, occurred at Fall River, Mass., on Saturday, the 19th inst. At 7 o'clock in the morning a fire broke out in Granite Mill, No. 1, in that city, and spread with great rapidity. The operators had just commenced work when the fire burst forth withlightning speed, cutting off the fire alarm and all egress from the building, which contained some seven hundred men, women and children. The fire seems to have originated in the spinning room in the northwest end of the mill, from friction in a mule head, at once igniting the oil waste about it, and spreading by means of oil on the floor and about each piece of machinery directly, and with great quickness, toward the centre tower—the only source of escape for those on the fourth and fifth stories, besides the four fire escapes. The flames had leaped to the entrance of the tower on the fourth floor, thereby cutting off this means of escape, but the operatives had two ladders of the south gable directly before them, and were urged by the overseers and citizens to take them. Some did, but others rushed mainly upon the balcony and dropped or threw themselves from the guards, hardly looking at the iron ladders. There was ample time for every one to have been saved had the right course been pursued, and it was not for want of direction that the girls lost their lives. The Superintendent, as soon as the alarm was given, hurried to the upper story, and, with the overseers, did all that was possible to save life, and when the means provided for escape in the construction of the mill were rendered unavailable by the heat, flames, and smoke, the people on the ground procured beds and mattresses for the poor unfortunates to jump upon. Many did throw themselves from the windows, but, in almost every case, received fatal or terrible injuries, for the distance was nearly fifty feet. It is said that four firemen lost their lives in endeavoring to rescue the girls. The fire was brought under about half past eight; but in that short time twenty-three persons were either burned or crushed to death outright or received such terrible injuries that their death took place in a few hours, while thirty-five others were injured, some of them, it is feared, fatally.

STATE NEWS.

Forty-five thousand feet of lumber are used each week in furnishing the supply of boxes required in shipping Singer sewing machines from the great works at Elizabeth.

Mrs. Wolf, wife of the lighthouse keeper at Atlantic City, has been appointed an assistant to her husband at a salary of $400 per annum. This is the first appointment of a female to that position than ever took place in this country.

The Passaic county Grand Jury has indicted George W. Stiles, ex-Clerk of the Paterson Aldermen, for embezzling funds from the City Treasury on false pretences. It is said that Stiles settled with his bondsman for $1,000, and then started to explore the Black Hill region.

Attorney-General Gilchrist has accepted the invitation of the Essex County Democratic Committee to deliver an address on the "Issues of the Day," before the Essex Congressional Democratic and Conservative Convention, to be held at Orange on Tuesday, the 29th inst.

The Jersey City Journal gives the following account of social life in that city: "A butcher doing business in Communipaw avenue, near Bergen avenue, whose name it is unnecessary to mention, lost his wife early last week. Maybe some people think the man hid himself in a dark room and wept and tore his hair, and all that sort of thing, but he didn't do anything of the kind. He just went off last Saturday and got married again. His grown up married daughters don't like it a bit."

Detectives McManus and Smith of Newark arrived from London yesterday with Laurence Hackett, for whom they have been searching several weeks. About three months ago Jacob Goldfinger, a Broad street jeweller, was knocked down in his store with a sledge hammer and felt for dead, while the would-be assassin rifled the show cases. The fellow who committed the assault was captured by some residents and identified as Hackett. But before he could be handed over to an officer he escaped and went to Dublin. Hackett was informed that officers were on their way to Ireland and he fled to London. Thither he was pursued and captured.

Thomas Cavanagh employed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, met a terrible death near Beavertown, N. J., last week. About a mile from Beavertown, Thomas Hoffman, a flagman in the employ of the company, observed that one of the wheels of the engine was covered with blood. On examination he discovered the head of the unfortunate clerk fastened somehow in the machinery around the wheel. He took it in his arms and carried it a mile back, when he discovered Cavanagh's headless body. It is not known how he got beneath the wheels of the train, but it is supposed that he fell off while the train was in motion.

ADMINISTRATORS' SALE.—In pursuance of an order of the Orphans' Court of the County of Essex, made on the fourteenth day of July, A. D., 1874, the subscribers, administrators of Martin Croughan, deceased, will sell by public vendue, on the premises hereinafter described, on Tuesday, the sixth day of October next, at the hour of two o'clock, in the afternoon, all those tracts of land and premises situated in the township of Bloomfield, Essex County, New Jersey:

The First Tract—beginning at a point in the Newark and Pompton Turnpike, one hundred and seventy feet distant from the lot owned by Horace H. Ward, deceased; thence running north fifteen degrees and forty-five minutes west one hundred and forty-five feet to a line (on the middle of Second river,) running from the centre of the bridge on said turnpike to the centre of the bridge on the old road; thence south eighty-two degrees and thirty minutes east one hundred and eighty-nine feet; thence south nine degrees and fifteen minutes east seventy-two feet and two inches; thence south seventy-four degrees and forty-five minutes west one hundred and sixty-seven feet to the place of beginning, being the same premises conveyed to said Martin Croughan, deceased, by deed recorded in Book M 15, page 138, &c., of deeds for said Essex County.

The Second Tract—beginning at a point in the westerly line of the road known as the Orange Road, leading through Bloomfield at the southeasterly corner of a lot known and designated as Lot 21, on a map of lots owned by M. M. Dodd and A. P. & G. S. Mitchell in Bloomfield; and being Lots Nos. 22, 23, 24, and 25, on said map; and the same premises conveyed to said Martin Croughan, deceased, by deed recorded in Book E 14, page 548, &c., of deeds for said Essex County.

The premises above described will be sold free and discharged of the right of dower therein of Frances Croughan, widow of said Martin Croughan.

Dated Sept. 22, 1874.
